That Boy of Yours —and His Clothes

Keep you hustling, don't they?
Wears out clothes faster than you like to buy them, and then he never has a suit that looks just right "for best."
Boys' clothes require even better and more careful making and better cloth than men's clothes, if they are going to stand the hard banging that a boy gives them.

It's because we now have some wonderfully serviceable clothes for boys that we are writing you. They may cost you a little more than you've been paying, but you'll find them the cheapest in the long run that you ever bought. To buy a suit of these clothes may cost a trifle more than common, but your boy will wear it two or three times longer than he has the others.

The difference in time and work between a good suit and a poor one is too small for consideration. The extra cost goes into the material used—better cloth—better linings—better thread. You can get the acme of value-giving in these Boys' Clothes of ours.

Come in and let us show you the good values—better still, bring the boy along and let us fit him with a suit—let him wear it—then if you are not satisfied we will gladly make it right.

AROUND THE TOWN

Mr. Bert Stitt is again in town for a few days.

Mr. Vernon Shantz is moving down to Taber where he has secured a good job on a big ranch there.

Inspector Aylesworth is again in town on one of his inspection tours to see that the kiddies for the line. The Inspector isn't so bad at that though.

Mrs. C. Youngs and Mrs. E. Parker attended the W. I. Convention at Wetaskiwin on Friday. Mrs. Parker returning on Saturday and Mrs. Youngs will visit at Morningside before returning.

Mr. G. Lunt, of Hamilton Ont. arrived here on Tuesday and will take charge of the repair work at Adams' garage next to the Union Bank. Mr. Lunt has had several years experience in the automobile repair business and no doubt patrons of this garage will get good service.

On Friday night the High School girls got up a sleighing party and succeeded in packing two sleighloads for a jolly party. After driving around for about an hour they had a dance at which a nice lunch was served, and no difficulty was met in passing a pleasant evening.

Quite a number of Didsburyites travelled to Calgary last week to see Sir Martin Harvey of the Grand, and there have been reports floating around ever since. Why was Ward Keith hunting him, and on 8th Avenue for a tooth? Did Bill Farrington eat apples in a box seat? Why was Bob Grosland nearly pinched for sitting in a shoe store with the ladies, out? Ask them, we can't tell you.

Jim McGhee attended the meeting of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons held in Edmonton last week and was honored by being elected Principal Sojourner. This means that Jim is on the road to becoming head of the Grand Chapter within a few years if nothing untoward happens in the meantime.

This is not only a well deserved honor to Mr. McGhee, who is an enthusiastic Mason, but also reflects credit on the town as a whole through him and his very many friends will congratulate him on his high position in the Order.

CHILDREN'S CORNER

The Children of Today are the Parents and Citizens of Tomorrow. In Years to Come the Destinies of Canada Will be in Their Hands

My dear Boys and Girls:

As I write this letter to you the sun is shining in at the windows and we are reminded that Spring is on the way. Spring is a very beautiful time of the year and you, who live in the country, I am sure, must delight in observing the awakening of the shrubs and bushes and the grass into fresh life. We have not had a very long winter this year have we, and I am sure we are all grateful to think that the worst of the severe weather is over.

I have received a good many letters from our boys and girls and have sent away two birthday cards already. Now I should very much like to have all your names for my birthday list, so please do not forget that Aunt Betty is looking out for them. Next week I am printing a list of all the boys and girls who have their names on our club list. Now if it should happen that you are at your name in and it has been missed from the list, I want you to write to me because there must have been some oversight, and perhaps your letter has been mislaid.

I must thank my little nephew who sent me a nice little bubble pipe and top which he made himself. I think they are splendid. I am sorry to note that his family had had smallpox and trust that there have been no ill effects. I will not write any more this week, but shall look in a letter from each one of your very soon.

Affectionately,

AUNT BETTY.

P.S.—Address your letter—"Aunt Betty," 903 McCallum-Hill Bldg., Regina, Sask.

King of the Golden River

"You promised me one slice of mutton you know brother," said Cluck.

"Oh, and you were cutting it hot I suppose, and going to catch all the gravy. It'll be long before I promise it to you again. Leave the room sir."

Cluck left the room melancholy enough. The brothers ate as much mutton as they could, locked the rest in the cupboard, and proceeded to get very drunk after dinner.

Such a night it was! Howling wind and rushing rain without intermission. The brothers had just sense enough left to put up all the shutters and double bar the door before they went to bed. As the clock struck twelve they were both awakened by a tremendous crash. Their door burst open with a violence which shook the house from top to bottom.

"What's that?" cried Schwartz starting up.

"Only I," said the little gentleman.

The brothers stared into the darkness. The room was full of water and they could see in the midst of it an enormous foam globe, spinning round and bobbing up and down like a cork on which reclined the little old gentleman, cap and all. There was plenty of room for it now for the roof was off.

"Sorry to inconvenience you," said their visitor ironically. "I'm afraid your beds are dampish. Perhaps you had better go to your brother's room. I've left the ceiling on there."

"They need no second admonition, but rushed into Cluck's room, wet through and in an agony of terror."

"You'll find my card on the kitchen table," the old gentleman called after them. "Remember, the last visit."

"Pray Heaven it may be!" said Schwartz, shuddering.

Letter to Aunt Betty

Ferland, Sask.,

February 19, 1921.

Aunt Betty,

903 McCallum-Hill Bldg., Regina, Sask.

Dear Aunt Betty:

I have read many letters of the Children's Corner and I like it. I have often thought of the very much poor children far away who are freezing with the cold and starving to death.

I remember once our teacher asked us to see how many things that we played with and thrown back in the corner of the play room. If we would not give them to the poor children by sending them to a place. I used to bring lots of things.

I have two pets, a cat, her name is Topsy, and a calf, its name is Lady. I used to have a pet chicken but mamma killed it by mistake. I have a sister, her name is Alice. She is three years old. I am 10, the oldest.

I will close hoping to see you either in print.

I remain as ever,

ETHEL HYMERS.

SOME PUZZLE GAMES

An Interrupted Game

We have before us a bowling green, where men are intent on their play. Nearby stands a man gazing out to sea across a harbor. He pays no attention to the game, but stands shading his eyes from the sun with his hands. Suddenly he sees something for he turns and striding up to one of the players, eagerly points out to him the person being lighted close by. To his surprise the player goes on with his game of bowls coolly remarking:

"There is plenty of time to finish the game and beat the Spaniards too. Yet all around people are gazing across the harbor or making hurried preparations. Evidently some great event is about to take place and all the men look determined though anxious. What incident is this?"

Sir Francis Drake warned of the approach of the Spanish Armada while at bowls.

The Robber and the Little Prince.

It is a tale of anxiety and danger. All the countryside is disturbed by war. A battle has just been fought, and in the forest near the battlefield, a mother and her boy have sought refuge. While wandering about hoping to escape notice some robbers discover the mother and her little son and take from them their money, jewelry and food and leave them. It is April. The trees are leafless and the mother is anxious for her boys who has been reared in the comfort of palaces. While seated on a tree trunk she hears a footstep on the dry leaves, and fearing it is another robber, her heart fails her. Then she thinks of her boy. He should one day be king of England. She rises and faces the robber, who is indeed a robber, but her pleadings rouse the pity of the man who promises to take her and her boy safely to the coast, so that they may be able to escape to France. What incident is this, and does the robber keep the promise that he had made to take them to the coast?

Solution. Queen Margaret the wife of Edward the IV, and her little son saved by a robber.

TABLE MANNERS AS THEY WERE AND AS THEY ARE

Table manners are not what they once were. But we needn't shake our heads in dismay. As a matter of fact, they have improved. For instance, in 1855 if you left your spoon in your cup, it was a sign to your hostess that you had had all the coffee you wanted. If, on the contrary, you laid your spoon in the saucer, she was expected promptly to offer you more.

Surprising, is it not, that the up-standing spoon, which today is a crime, was one of the fine points of dining in the middle of the nineteenth century! But then thousands, perhaps millions, of cups had been overturned in efforts to signal, "Hold, hold, enough," people must have begun to see the advantages of the spoon supine.

The spoon-in-cup practise goes much further back than 1855, of course. A generation before that, cups were often made without saucers, and at table, were set on mats. It was then the height of carelessness to lay a spoon on the table-cloth.

If we could transport ourselves on some magic carpet—carpets were in vogue sixty-odd years ago to the dinner table of an average American family of the fifties, we would find other differences besides teaspoon procedure. The dinner hour would be noon, for evening dinner was a rarity even in large cities. In all probability the dining room would have dark walls and a towering black walnut sideboard. In the middle of the table, you look for a low bowl filled with ferns or a vase of flowers.

Behold, instead, a silver caster, tall, shiny and replete with the condiments sung by little girls when they skip rope—pepper, salt, mustard and cider vinegar. Oil is conspicuous by its absence for few Americans of the fifties would touch it. Is it any wonder that salads eaten with vinegar and sugar only, were unpopular?

Father and mother sit at the sides of the table, not at the ends as is the custom now. You fear, perhaps, that they have chosen these strategic positions for convenience in reaching nearly every dish on the board! Your suspicion, alas, is well-founded.

A white funeral urn stands in front of father, who, rising to lift its cover, tucks his napkin into his vest. We blush to think the poor man should know no better! Mother is taking a pin from her belt and affixing her napkin so that it cannot slip out of her lap. Although it pains us to see her do it, we ought to realize that the lady was instructed in this maneuver by one of the best etiquette books of the fifties.

The secret of the funeral urn is revealed when the cover is removed. It is a soup tureen, of course, and there beside it is the gigantic silver ladle. (How many years is it since both these objects were banished from our repasts?) But what is that fence of knives, forks and spoons built around each person's place? This is the average, everyday way of laying the table as it used to be practised in this country, with implements disposed at careless angles, and goblets put anywhere within reaching distance of the diners.

The family progresses speedily from oyster stew to roast chicken, which, to our surprise, no one regards as a luxury. Father carves, daughter serves butters from a covered dish into saucers, while the great-aunt Sarah apportions summer squash in yet more saucers. Meanwhile, mother has doled out a few lemonade lectures to such members of the family as like it. Of course no tomatoes accompany this delicacy, for "love-apples" are still distrusted as food. Look! What is mother doing now? Yes, she is cutting up her lettuce, unconscious of her social error.

We are glad to see she handles her fork in the approved way, laying her knife on the right side of her plate, as soon as she has cut a few pieces of meat and transfers the fork to her right hand before conveying the food to her mouth.

But, oh horror, there is great-aunt Sarah at the far end of the table eating with her knife! She dates her training from the era when Americans had only two-tined forks and it was impossible to pick up food with them.

Our attention is distracted from Aunt Sarah by a rattling of dishes. The family has consumed an astonishing amount of chicken and vegetables in record time and each eater is now "stacking" plates and saucers, knives and forks. These stacks are passed to mother, who, by leaning back in her chair, succeeds in placing them on the sideboard, in unpeppering array.

The meal over, a small container of toothpicks is passed among the diners. This is too much for our twentieth century sensibilities and we flee from the scene.

At the present day table mathematical precision is the rule. Beginning at the left of each "cover" are the forks, laid perfectly straight with times up, the fork at the outside being the one that will be needed first. The napkin, neatly folded is at the left of the forks; and above them, almost touching their tips, stands the bread-and-butter plate on which are placed butter, bread and a small silver butter-spreader.

At the right of the "cover" are the knives, exactly parallel and with the blades turned inward.

CUTICURA

PROMOTES THICK HAIR

Cuticura Soap shampoo preceded by touches of Cuticura Ointment to spots of dandruff, itching and irritation are most successful. These fragrant emollients save the hair, clear the scalp and meet every want of the toilet and bath.

Further to the right lie the spoons, the one to be used first being on the outside, and above the knives stands the glass of water.

When it comes to the actual serving of meals, the average family has hit upon a happy solution. To a daughter, or even a son, is assigned the task of waiting on the table and children thus acquiring a useful bit of household technique.

They learn, for instance, to pass dishes to the left of each person at table. In setting down a cup of tea or coffee, they go to the diner's right.

In clearing the table after each course, the volunteer waiter or waitress, going to the right of each person, removes two plates at a time, one in each hand. These are placed side by side on a tray, standing on a serving table, or on a tea-wagon. When either of these receptacles is filled, it is taken into the kitchen. Before dessert is served, the table is crumbed and glasses refilled.

But let us not be too proud of our superiority over 1855. Our grandfathers may blush to think their grandmothers ate without disinfecting their hands.

Questions & Answers

Question: Who wrote the "Cloister and the Hearth"?

Answer: This remarkable story was written by Charles Reade. He wrote many things, but it can be said that he wrote at least one historical story which is only second rate because it has to be compared with Thackeray's splendid "Emond." This is the "Cloister and the Hearth." Chas. Reade was born on June 8, 1814 of well to do parents.

His school days are said to have been noted chiefly for the amount of flogging he had to suffer as those were the days when teachers believed more in thrashing their pupils than in making knowledge attractive to them. But he also had private tutors and later gained some distinction at Oxford University, becoming a barrister in his twenty-ninth year. He is one of the few famous authors who commenced to write late in life, as he was thirty-six before he seriously attempted the art of authorship, and was forty-seven when his best story was written.

People who knew him seemed to like Charles Reade because he was a warm-hearted friend of the poor and oppressed and some of his stories which were most popular in his own day were written for the purpose of drawing attention to public evils which he wished to see abolished. He died April 11, 1884, and was buried in Willesden Churchyard.

Sparklin Trial on at Sandwich

Mrs. Lulu Trumble, widow of the victim of the Chappell House tragedy, and Edward Smith, star witness for the prosecution were severely cross-examined recently in connection with the death of Beverly Trumble during the raid on the roadhouse by license officers November 6.

Mrs. Trumble in spite of two hours cross-examination by the chief counsel for the defence repeated her previous statement that Trumble was unarmed at the time of the shooting, and also swore that she had never heard her husband threaten to shoot the pastor during his activities as inspector.

Veterans After Lavergne

The C.W.V.A. of Kingston, Ont., has decided to take some action regarding speeches by Armand Lavergne of Quebec, and C. J. Foy, of Perth, Ont. The branch has gone on record deploring the fact "that people who call themselves citizens of Canada, and who enjoy the freedom of the country should be permitted to slander the flag for which the members of the association had fought."

Planning U. S. Army

A United States army of an average strength of 175,000 men for the fiscal year was provided for in an appropriation presented by the Senate sub-committee on military affairs in completing its reports on the army appropriation bill for presentation to the full committee.

The strength compares with an average of 150,000 as provided for in the bill as passed by the House.

Pneumonia Cure

Chlorine gas is being used by an Alberta physician, Dr. F. C. Chandler, of Cereol, for the treatment of pneumonia. He claims that the results are highly satisfactory. His efforts are based on experiments conducted in the American army in 1918 and the chlorine is introduced into the system through the stomach and reaches the lungs by way of the blood stream.

Dr. Turner reports, according to the London Times, that the epicenter of the point on the earth's surface close to the Chinese city Ping Liang, in the province of Kan Hu.

Killed in Work at Niagara

George Young, St. Catharines, and I. C. Austin, Hydro Camp were instantly killed and two other men seriously injured when a hydro-electric engine crashed into a donkey engine at the whirlpool on the hydro construction. The engine and work cars toppled over the bank down to the side of the gorge. A little earlier another man was killed at the main disposal dump at the whirlpool by being struck by a dump car.

Sufficiently Punished

A spectator of the cockfight in Toronto Sunday morning, fell into a car of grease in effecting a get-away. The police say that the man was half-drowned and they considered his punishment sufficient. No effort has been made to ascertain his name and address. The man slipped through a hole in the roof and landed squarely in the cooling grease.

Shot While Hunting Weasels

George Crawford, a middle-aged farmer of the Indian Head district, accidentally and fatally shot himself with a rifle recently when at his farm south of town, he entered the hen house in quest of weasels that had been killing his chickens. He has been living alone on the farm this winter. A wife and several children live in town. He was found dead by a neighbor to whom he had but a few minutes before phoned to come and assist him with some work about the farm. A coroner visited the scene and decided an inquest unnecessary.

One Hundred and Fifty Divorce Cases

The Senate divorce committee will start work Thursday morning. As there are some 150 cases to be heard there will be sufficient work ahead to keep the committee busy practically all through the session.

Fight Against Typhus

Six thousand, three hundred and fifty-five persons have been examined in New York, in the course of a week, and of these 272 were said to be infected with vermin. These measures are being taken to prevent the possible introduction of typhus fever.

Forty-eight Failures in Week

R. G. Dun & Co. report forty-eight failures in Canada for the past week, compared with twelve for the corresponding week last year. Ontario leads with sixteen, Quebec, fourteen; Nova Scotia eight; Alberta four, British Columbia two; Saskatchewan, two; New Brunswick, two. No failures were reported from Manitoba or Prince Edward Island.

Woodman Killed

Lujay LeMere was felling trees in company with William Fidler, about a mile east of the Prince Albert Lumber Company's mill when a tall poplar which Fidler was cutting fell on LeMere. Dr. R. L. King, the coroner, has decided that no inquest will be necessary.

How to Address Women's Jury

The question of how to address a mixed jury by judge and counsel has been bothering the courts since the act of enfranchisement enabling women to act as jurors became operative.

Counsel have already ventured on the style "Ladies and Gentlemen of the jury" and have been pulled up sharply by the Bench, whose ruling has been that the proper style should be: "Members of the jury." Against this ruling Judge Parry protests. He would much prefer "Comrades of the jury," and if not that then "Gentlefolk," "My just 'Jurors."

Toronto Milk Down

It was announced recently by several milk distributors that beginning March 1, in Toronto, there will be a reduction of 2 cents per quart, and one cent per pint in the price of milk. The price will then be fourteen and eight cents respectively.

Nurses Exonerated

The nurses of the Hospital Board in Edmonton have been completely exonerated from blame in connection with the recent enquiry, and the new board further states that a great injustice was done them.

Lawyer Given Back Gown

Percy E. Hagel, counsel in the Krafchenko case, who was dismissed from the Manitoba bar in 1912, was reinstated as a member of the Law Society in good standing by Mr. Justice McCallin, in Court of the King's Bench recently. At the time of Krafchenko's trial Mr. Hagel was imprisoned on a charge of helping his client to escape from jail. On his release he lectured for some time on the temperance question. For nearly two years he has been engaged in law work in Vancouver, but has been unable to practise on account of his dismissal from the courts.

Cat Saves Life

A cat belonging to non-commissioned officers of the Welsh regiment stationed at Cardiff, Wales, has been the means of saving a life under unusual circumstances.

Regimental Sergt-Major Porter has been asleep for some time when he was awakened by a cat scratching frantically on the wall of his room. He called for assistance, and after being carried into the open, recovered. The cat had no ill-effect on the cat.

A Coat's History

William Cowan was recently sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary in connection with the theft of a $10,000 fur coat, once worn by a Chinese Emperor. It was smuggled to England, and from there brought to Montreal. It was stolen in Toronto and eventually disposed of by the thieves for $100.

Asylum Gunned By Fire

A very serious fire broke out recently in the Insane Asylum at Hamilton, Ontario, and in ten minutes after the alarm was given all the patients in the building had been safely removed. The hospital authorities state that none of the inmates escaped during the fire, and that two who had been reported missing were later found in other buildings of the institution.

Dr. W. W. English, medical superintendent of the hospital said that he did not know the cause of the fire.

Woman and Father Facing Murder Charge

Victoria Boychuk and her father Nick Boychuk were committed for trial on a charge of murder when they were arraigned before J. McKie, J.P., of Elfron, Monday. The victim of the alleged murder was a seven day old child of which it is believed Victoria Boychuk is the mother. In a statement given to the police last week Nick Boychuk said:

"About 8 o'clock on February 10, Victoria and the baby were lying on the bed. Victoria went to sleep and the baby went to sleep. I kept the fire going for a few hours and then went to bed. I slept a few hours and then got up to fix the fire. I put my hand on the baby's mouth. The body was cold. It was dead."

His daughter, Victoria, has not yet made a statement. The two will appear at the next criminal sittings of the King's Bench at Wynyard, and in the meantime Victoria Boychuk has been committed to Prince Albert jail and her father to Regina jail.

Blood Tests to Be Made of Cattle

Every effort is being made in Saskatchewan to keep the province free of "contagious abortion," a cattle disease said to be second only to tuberculosis in destructiveness, which is now reported prevalent in every county where cattle raising is an industry.

Arrangements have been completed with the University of Saskatchewan to make blood tests to assist farmers in ascertaining whether any of their cattle are afflicted with the disease, as announced by Hon. C. M. Hamilton, minister of agriculture. By a delicate, but extremely accurate process, samples of blood from each of the cows may be tested at the university.

Hon. Mr. Hamilton stresses that a circular describing the disease and suggestive precautionary measures is being published, copies of which may be obtained free of charge.

A Noiseless Gun

Captain A. E. Robertson, of Victoria, discussing the report from Ottawa regarding his invention of a flashless and noiseless gun, explains that the real feature of the gun is that it is a quick-firing gun with a special type of ammunition lending itself more particularly for use on aeroplanes. The gun is under secret patent with the War Office but the cost of manufacturing the ammunition is about half the former rates. The gun is known in the war office as the "Robertson automatic gun."

Captain Robertson does not claim that his gun is noiseless, and the question of its being flashless was experimented in Woolwich Arsenal where it is for home use only. He worked on the invention for five years during the war and all patents were taken over by the War Office a year ago.

Captain Robertson was born in Marquette, Minn., and has been a resident of Victoria, for thirteen years. He was a captain in the 3rd Regiment, Canadian Garrison Artillery.

Alberta Women to Serve on Jury

The new jury Act for the province, tabled in the Legislature provided that women may serve as jurors as well as men, but it is stipulated that no woman shall be compelled to so serve unless, prior to the summons, she signs a document as to her willingness to act in that capacity.

Further provision relating to women state that in actions relating to slander, libel, breach of promise and such cases, if a woman desires she may be relieved from serving.

Playhouses Under Control of Soviet

In a lecture on "Intellectual Life in Russia," by the dramatic author Leo Masliah, the strange conditions ruling in the theatre under the Soviet regime were described. He stated there are three kinds of theaters where musical comedy is played, private theaters where musical comedy is played.

Archbishop Protest Against Divorce Court

A letter was read in the Roman Catholic Churches of the Ottawa diocese from Archbishop Gauthier, asking the establishment of the different parishes the cause of Parliament protesting to sign petitions to be submitted to against the proposed legislation to introduce divorce courts into Ontario. Experience shows, the letter stated, that the establishment of divorce courts greatly increases the number of divorces.

"In order to counteract this movement and to oppose this fearful wave of divorce applications through which we are passing, it is advisable to petition Parliament," says the letter. The petition also asked that an act be passed abolishing divorces.

$4,000,000 to Complete Railroad

Forty million dollars will have been spent on the construction of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway by the province by the end of March next year, when the line is expected to be in operation to Prince George. Premier Oliver made this announcement recently when explaining the necessity for another bill being brought down permitting borrowing of an additional $4,000,000 for the coming year's work on the railway.

Killed in Snowfall

Three killed and one seriously injured is the result of a snowslide on the C.N.R. forty-six miles west of Jasper last week, at Mount Resplendent.

The first slide occurred in the afternoon and a rotary plow left Jasper to clear the line. The plow had only penetrated the pile of snow a short distance when a second slide occurred, burying the plow and workmen under a mass of snow and ice.

The three men mentioned were dead when removed from the wreckage and Brakeman Fortin so badly injured that he was rushed to Edmonton hospital. He was found to be suffering from a broken leg and dislocated shoulder.

HOW TO COOK POTATOES

The French say that we don't know how to cook potatoes, we only know how to spoil them. And it is certainly undeniable that the potatoes which I get every day, in this very ordinary farm house in this little town of France village, are far and away nicer than any that I have eaten in big London restaurants.

Madame the Farmeress does not consider herself at all a splendid cook. She was rather shy about letting me see her ways, at first. But, when she had fully realized the depth of my English ignorance her pity overcame her shyness.

"What! You wash your potatoes after peeling them! May all the saints be good to us!" cried she, in sheer horror. "Don't you know, my poor little young lady, that it takes all the nature out of the potato if one does that?"

I hadn't known—but now I am inclined to agree with her. For it is quite reasonable isn't it? That soaking in cold water after peeling, soaks some of the well-flavored salts out of the potato. This is the French way to go to work:

1. Wash the unpeeled potatoes and brush them well with a scrubbing brush.

2. Peel them.

3. Wash your hands and your knife.

4. Rub the peeled potatoes in a clean dry towel to take off the finger-marks.

Now, having done all that, you can go on to grill your potatoes or fry them or whatever you like. Personally I think this is particularly good done in either of the following ways:

Pommes de terre en ragout.

Melt in a saucepan a good table spoonful of dripping or lard. Slice in a large onion and fry to a pale brown. Then stir in a heaped table spoonful of flour, and let the flour color a little. Have ready three-quarters of a

Women Accused of Death of Child

As a result of a fire at Meacham, Sask., in which a child was burned to death, Mary Sealeschuk, aged 25, has been arrested by Saskatchewan Provincial Police on a charge of murder. The body of the child has been exhumed and an inquest and preliminary hearing have been set for March 4.

Convicted as Common Scold

A jury recently convicted Mrs. Bridget Ruppel of being a "common scold." Sentence was imposed under an old act of Revolutionary days. Assistant District-Attorney Little, in his address to the jury said it would be a good thing if the old-fashioned ducking stool could be resurrected for the benefit of Mrs. Ruppel and her neighbors. Testimony was to the effect that she had "put the curse" upon women she did not like and called them many names. The jury recommended mercy and the judge ordered her to pay the costs, go on parole for six months, and move from the neighborhood.

pin of boiling water, and use this to mix all to a thick sauce. Add pepper and salt to taste. Stir the sauce carefully so that there may be no lumps, and let it boil for three minutes. Then add two pounds of potatoes, cut into halves or quarters, according to their size. Cover the pan and simmer gently till the potatoes are cooked—about one to one and a quarter hours. Serve sauce and potatoes together in a deep dish.

You can put another vegetable into this as well, if you like. Carrots or turnips, or both, are excellent. Only, in this case, you must cook the carrots in the sauce for at least one hour before you add the potatoes, because carrots are so tough at this time of year. Cut them in cubes, as if for an Irish stew.

Puree de pommes de terre et des haricots

Take equal quantities of peeled potatoes and soaked haricot beans. The beans had better be soaked over night. Boil them separately, and then mash them together through a sieve, adding a little of the water of the potatoes, but none of the haricots, because haricot water is so bitter. Melt in a saucepan a good table spoonful of margarine. Add the mashed vegetables and plenty of pepper and salt. Stir them with a wooden spoon, keeping the pan on the fire till the mixture is thoroughly hot. Then beat in enough boiling milk to thin down the mixture to the consistency of whipped cream. Put into a hot vegetable dish and sprinkle with chopped parsley.

This is one of the most nourishing vegetable dishes you can find. It is especially excellent for children who are growing fast, and who need to be fattened up a little.

BETTER TRACTOR VALUE

Rumely Oil Pull represents the best value in the Tractor field today because:

- It burns kerosene always, early and late, at all loads, in all weather;
- It uses less gallons of kerosene than most other engines use of gasoline;
- It is oil-cooled; no frozen jackets, no leaky radiators, no overheating;
- It is the smoothest running, easiest handled engine at either belt or drawbar work, and more important than all else, it will be a good engine when competitive engines are rusting away in the scrap heap.

The first Oil Pull ever built is still on the job after eleven years of service. Its total repair account to date is about $200; less than many an inferior tractor's upkeep for a single season.

NEAPOLIS NOTES

We are bright people spelled with a capital B, if you don't believe it read on.

We have enjoyed a season of Illinois Moonlight.

B. Sherk has had another faraway party.

A new son at Thos. Hunter's. Capt. Clemens is overlooking his real estate here.

R. C. Oldham drove in a fine bunch of fat steers to Didsbury on Monday.

We are sorry to hear that Henry Rawler is down with pneumonia.

Mrs. Jack Cummins is importing some purebred poultry to improve her already fine flock.

The Ed. Barnes' visited at the Sherk home Sunday.

Mrs. E. Nelson, daughter of R. C. Oldham, is very sick in the Didsbury Hospital with influenza pneumonia.

Mrs. J. A. Cook gave a very pleasing party on Tuesday in honor of Master Leonard's birthday.

Geo. Laits and wife are at home from their trip to the old home, Sunny Alberta for their Ed Liesemer is now a school patron.

Stewart Tighe's team got in a hurry Friday evening and went on home leaving the entire party sitting in a snowbank.

Mr. Truman Reynolds, his wife and two daughters were week end visitors at the R. C. Oldham home. They were on a motor trip from Banff to Ed. monthon.

Lloyd Chandler and wife spent Saturday at the Swingle's. R. C. Oldham and Edwin made a business trip to Calgary on Monday.

Lawrence Chandler is once more with us.

Jack Haines had midnight callers last Wednesday evening, that he took to be a pair from Ponoka. They wanted hot coffee and more fire and were terribly peevish at Jack because he had a light and wasn't dancing. After some very earnest conversation on both sides they moved to be a pair of musicians from Carstairs who were looking for twenty five dollars. They finally left and Jack went back to bed wondering if there might be some occasions when those who did not dance would still have the upper to pay.

Last Thursday evening the Pelicans and friends to the number of forty gathered for a fast social evening at the home of Mr. R. C. Oldham. Games, music and "chit" spent the evening. Mrs. Ed. Barnes led her ball team to victory and Walsh was a cheerful loser; Mrs. Chandler took the prize at Five Hundred; Baggammon honors were divided between Edwin Oldham and Mrs. J. D. Ward; the fast races were won by Mrs. J. A. Cook and Ed. Barnes; everybody took a shot at craps; Capt. Clemens served coffee and as a waiter he is alone in his class; in the talking match, Wm. Coates came first, with Ward second and Liesemer a poor third. Someone said that Cook ate four plates of ice cream but we are not sure what Cook it was. In a few minutes it was four

A FEW RAMBLING REMARKS BY A PRAIRIE WOMAN

Ruskin says, "From whence comes the word wife?" It is the great word in which the English and Latin languages conquered the French and Greek. Some day I hope that the French will get a word for it, instead of that dreadful word femme.

But where do you think it comes from? You must either be housewives or housemoths; remember that. In the deep sense you must either weave men's fortunes and embroider them, or feed upon and bring them to decay.

Wherever a true wife comes, home is always around her. The stars may be over her head, the glow worm in the night could glow only for her; but home is wherever she is and for a noble woman it stretches far around her, better than houses ceiled with cedar or painted with vermillion, shedding its light for those who else are homeless. This, I believe to be the woman's true sphere and power.

Surely this conception of a woman's sphere is too beautiful and broad in its embrace to need any comment, and as we sometimes feel our frailty and littleness, it should encourage us to higher endeavors and broader sympathies for the benefit and comfort of the world, our world, because the little community in which we live is, after all, representative of the sorrow, joy, ambitions and progress of the whole wide world.

I have been thinking recently of mists, and I wonder if some of those who read these pages have had some mists in their lives. Perhaps health has gone in a mist of pain; joy in a mist of sorrow; the face of a loved one in the mist of death; faith in a mist of doubt. Life looks very different under the mist and seems as though it could never be the same again. When it is dark it is so hard to remember the bright times we have had; the days when joy had been our portion and it is easy to forget too that the bright days of spring lie ahead of the dreariest and the coldest winter.

But the mists do clear. Fortunately most of the mists that cross the pathway of our life are temporary things. For a time they seem to shut out everything, but they do pass away; and sometimes the color and the brightness of life shows up more intensely because of the mist which has gone before.

And the mist which seems the darkest to our material eyes, is the mist which lies at the end of the Valley, the mist of death, but again it is only a mist and at the other end the touch of God's hand will dispel all our doubts and our tremblings and our fears and the brightness of the eternal will be all the greater in contrast with the darkness of the mist.

I have had one or two letters from women on the prairie who are in need of clothing for themselves and their families. If there are any readers of this column who have clothing which they could gladly spare to those who need them, and will write to me, I would be glad to put them in

THE HOMESTEAD ACT

This Act was passed in 1915, and was based on recommendation of the commission which enquired into agricultural implements sales. It was found that sales of the larger implements, such as threshing engines, ploughing and traction engines, were too often accompanied by a mortgage on the homestead which in many cases resulted in its loss and consequent suffering for the wives and children of the mortgagor.

The Act was consolidated at the last session of the Legislature and now includes the amendments made since its original passage, without altering the principle and intention of the Act which is to recognize and secure the wife's interest in the homestead.

The homestead may mean the original 160 acres homesteaded, or 160 acres of purchased land on which the owner resides, but must not be more than 160 acres; or the house and buildings with the lot or lots on which they are situated in an urban municipality. The homestead is the same as defined in the Exemptions Act, with the exception that it shall not be restricted in value to $3,000.

All documents affecting the title to a homestead must be signed by the owner and his wife, if he has one. The wife must appear before certain officials or before any solicitor other than the one who prepared the document and having been examined separately and apart from her husband shall acknowledge that she understands her rights in the homestead and signs the instrument of her own free will and without compulsion on the part of her husband. All documents affecting homesteads, such as a transfer, agreement, lease, mortgage or encumbrance, charging a homestead with the payment of a sum of money must contain the wife's declaration that she has executed the same for the purpose of relinquishing her rights to the homestead and also a certificate by the officer, taking the same that he has duly examined the wife that she understands her rights and is not acting under compulsion. This procedure, however, may be dispensed with by a judge of the court of King's Bench, who, on being applied to, finds that the owner's wife is living apart from her husband under circumstances disentitling her to alimony, or that she is a lunatic or person of unsound mind.

All other such instruments intended to convey or transfer an interest in land and mortgages, must be accompanied by the maker's affidavit either that the land described is not his homestead or that he has no wife. In the event of owner of a homestead making an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, the wife's rights in the homestead may still be protected. The assignor has to notify the registrar if he has a wife; the registrar must notify the wife of the filing of the assignment and that her rights in her husband's homestead will cease at the expiration of thirty days from the mailing of the notice, unless in the meantime she files a caveat against the land claimed as a homestead. If this is done within the stipulated time the wife's rights are protected.

The widow of the owner of a homestead also has her rights protected, as her signature and declaration are still necessary to make effectual any instrument affecting her deceased husband's homestead, which his personal representative desires to execute.

When land is required for the construction, maintenance or operation of a railway, this Act does not apply.

A further section provides that this Act shall apply to all wives, whether or not they have attained the age of 21 years, and for the purposes of this Act and every matter of this nature under or by virtue of its provisions, a married woman of whatever age be deemed to be sui juris.

Dry Lips

Question: Farmer's Wife, Mil-den. Could you please tell me of something to keep my lips from being so dry? I have tried lip salves and all that sort of thing, but after a few minutes my lips are as dry as ever. And one can't smile properly with dry lips, can one?

Answer: What is worse than not being able to smile properly is that with lips so constantly dry as yours, one cannot digest properly. The saliva that helps to keep the lips moist is an important digestive juice. Your constantly dry lips are the symptom of some kind of digestive disturbance. Lip salves are of no use, because the dryness comes from some failure in the secretion of saliva, and nothing you rub on the lips can touch that condition. Salves are only of use when the lips are dry or cracked, during frosty weather or in cold winds—had from any chemist, is the best thing I know. For your case I strongly advise you to see a doctor, who will be able to find out the cause of, and suggest treatment for, the troublesome dryness of your lips.

Shall you complain who feed the world?

Who clothe the world? who house the world?

Shall you complain who are the world?

Of what the world may do?

As from this hour you use your power,

The world must follow you

The world's life hangs on your right hand,

Your strong right hand, your skilled right hand,

See to it what you do.

Or dark or light, or wrong or right,

The world is made by you.

Then rise as you never rose before,

Nor hoped before, nor dared before,

The power that lies in you.

Stand all as one, see justice done

Believe and Dare and Do.

"Martha"

OR THE HOME OF
HER ADIPTION
BY E. L.

(All Rights Reserved)

Martha, an exceedingly intelligent and beautiful girl of about thirteen years finds herself on the way to Canada from England on the ward of a large institution—there is an accident to the vessel and the passengers are all taken off in life-boats. Martha and her little friend Clara, a charming child, also a ward of the institution, come in contact with a Major—who is much interested in Martha and gives her his card, telling her to appeal to him if ever she needs help. This gentleman who is a person of much distinction in England has a beautiful wife, two sons and a daughter named Lenore who is a great source of anxiety to her mother, who is a very good woman. The last result of one of her scenes in the resignation of her governess, a Miss Stewart, a young woman who is running a large ranch in Saskatchewan. One day as Miss Stewart sits out in the garden an old lady shrills round the house and asks her some questions about the handsome Lenore, then chuckles mysteriously as she shows Anna, Miss Stewart, the photograph of a very beautiful child whose name she tells her is "Martha" and who is her grand-daughter, but at present is ward in a large institution which sends its children to Canada.

Martha and Gloria arrive at the Homes in Canada and Martha has just learned that she is to be separated from Gloria and is to be placed in a school. She is very sad and Miss Stewart who is to call for her and take her to her new home.

And meanwhile Anna Stewart, a demure little English figure in grey walked the deck of an Atlantic liner en route to Canada. Anna's eyes had taken on the blue of the sky, and her cheeks wore an unwanted wild rose color as she gladly sniffed the tang of the sea-breezes.

Anna was a splendid type of clean, wholesome English womanhood. She was perfectly happy just now with pleasant kindly dreams of her innocent future. Of how glad Robert would be when she arrived—the joys of freedom and a home of their own together. She adored Robert, and although he was five years younger, she thought there was no one so handsome, so clever and so good as he. Indeed if she had ever given a serious thought to love and marriage, she would have admitted frankly that she had never seen any man to equal Robert.

She had many things about which to think as the blue waves tipped with white splashed on the sides of the gallant vessel; and more than one man turned to glance approvingly at her trim appearance and pleasant face as she slowly walked up and down, all alone on the steamer deck.

Robert had asked her to stay off at P. . . . and said if she could get a little girl to help her and be company for her too. "A child of about fourteen," he had said. "I should think would do, perhaps you could persuade the Home people to let you have a girl somewhat above the average who could be trained to be a real companion to you and who would appreciate the teaching you could give her."

As Anna ruminated on this letter and visioned the little girl she would like, the sweet pure face of the child in the old lady's photograph away in that beautiful English garden on an ideal evening in June, flashed across her mind, and she smiled as she thought how absurd and impossible it would be for her to find that child. It would indeed be a coincidence, she reflected.

O'clock. Police events for the near future are a Ghost Walk at the Whitehead Ranch and a Cobweb party at Fly butte.

Mrs. J. Ward gave a big party last Friday night, entertaining about fifty of her neighbors. It was a surprise to her to see all she had invited accept the invitation in spite of the fact that there were big doings in Community Hall that night. However Mrs. Ward was well prepared for the event and threw open the whole house to accommodate her guests. Cards, neighbors and other games, civilized proceedings, while others sat around and spent a pleasant time talking of old times in the States. At one o'clock a grand supper was served which for quantity and quality would be hard to beat and the grass hatcher went away filled to the brim. Jerry passed around the cigars and a merry time came to an end about three thirty, the visitors hoping that Mrs. Ward would give another party soon.

A Box Social and dance will be held in Community Hall on Thursday March 24th. Ladies please bring boxes.

The Mountain View Women's Institute will hold their meeting at the home of Mrs. C. Long on Wednesday, March 23rd.
